1. Between 1 and 12 September 1953, the barracks installation in Droege near Fuerstenberg was occupied by about 1,500 troops wearing red-bordered black epaulets. On 4 September, a truck towing a 57-mm AT gun and occupied by 1 officer and 5 to 6 was seen entering the installation. Platoons of each 20 to 40 soldiers, armed with earlines and carrying entrenching tools and practice targets, kept entering and leaving the installation throughout the day. They went to, and returned from, the Carlshorst training area. All barracks buildings were fully lighted after nightfall. In the morning of 5 September, a number of troops engaged in service of the piece drill and firing practice on three 57-mm AT guns, with 1 officer and 4 to 10 to each gun, at the drill ground north of the installation. On 6 September, three amphibious vehicles were seen on Fuergersee (lake); they entered the installation at about 2 p.m. On either side of the Fuergersee, radio sections were observed who, at about 3 p.m., were trucked to the installation. On 11 September, individual platoons left for the Carlshorst training area.

1.  Comment. Contradictory to a report of early August, this information tends to indicate that, after early September, the bulk of the 34th Gds Mtz Rifle Regt of the 12th Gds Tank Div had returned to their known quarters in Droegen.

3.  Comment. The Hq Second Gds Mecz army has been carried in the restricted area south of Roellinsee so far. The restricted area north of the lake is mentioned for the first time. According to an available map, no buildings are located on the northern shore of the lake. The AAA emplacements, from which the one near Steinfelde was previously reported, are believed to serve as a protection for the above mentioned headquarters.
